About the book

London Town was originally published in 1883, and was selected and scanned by the Library of Congress. Written by Felix Leigh, this rhyming picture book takes you through the sights and sounds of London, England. Marcus Ward & Co, a prominent publishing house in London, was well known for creating greeting cards from the mid 1860's to the mid 1890's.
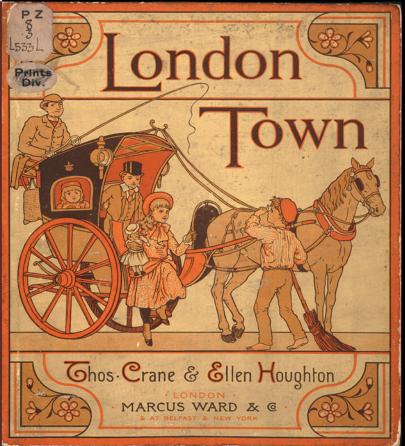

About the Archive

Internet Archive is dedicated to providing universal access to all human knowledge. Through archiving the web, movies, music, software and books and making them accessible online, the Archive hopes to provide the best creative works for scholars, students and the public. Learn more about Internet Archive at www.archive.org.

About the Bookmobile

The Internet Bookmobile is a mobile digital library that downloads books from the Internet via satellite and then prints and binds these books, anytime and anywhere. By allowing people to instantly print their own books at low cost, the Bookmobile helps to further the Archive's vision of universal access. In addition to the one in San Francisco, there are currently Internet Bookmobiles in India, Uganda, and Egypt. Learn more about the Bookmobile at www.archive.org/texts/bookmobile.php.

ARCHIVE

INTERNET

London Town

Leigh, Crane & Houghton

London Town

P Z
8 3
L533 L

Prints
Div.

London
Town

Thos. Crane & Ellen Houghton

· LONDON ·
MARCUS WARD & C⁰
& AT BELFAST & NEW YORK

Felix Leigh, Thomas Crane & Ellen Houghton